

COVID-19: Red Sun Farms Preventative Measures

- The leadership team at Red Sun Farms continues to monitor COVID-19 developments and the possible risks to our employees, customers and distribution commitments.
- Internally, we continue the process of informing our employees about risks of the virus and have taken measures to protect our employees, who are our most valuable assets. Their health and safety is of the utmost importance to Red Sun Farms. Our organization will follow all official recommendations of the World Health Organization (WHO), the Center for Disease Control (CDC), the Public Health Agency of Canada and the local governing health departments.
- The team at Red Sun Farms appreciate your patience & understanding as we continue to work through these difficult times to ensure our highest quality produce is delivered to our customers.
- Fortunately, our operations are in a shoulder period, where we are able to offer produce from Mexico, USA, and Canada. We believe this will result in improved inventory to accommodate our customers demands.
- Red Sun Farms is implementing & adjusting our business practices to comply with the 3 governing bodies that affect our North American operation.
- Our leadership team continues to monitor the evolving situation and will communicate and changes to supply or policy changes as a result of these uncertain times.
- Our team is committed to do our best in meeting our customer demands within the restrictions and limitations of the current circumstances.
- The safety of our people & product is of the utmost importance. In an effort to maintain our high level of quality standards and ensuring continued operations within our facilities we have implemented the attached practices & behaviours throughout the organization.
